

National Endowment for the Humanities

Division
of Research
Programs

Fellowships at Centers for Advanced Study
1991-92

FELLOWSHIPS AT
CENTERS FOR ADVANCED STUDY

National Endowment for the Humanities fellowships at centers for advanced study offer scholars opportunities to pursue independent research in the humanities while benefiting from collegial association with scholars in other areas or disciplines of study. Fellowships in this program are awarded and administered by the centers themselves. Tenure of the fellowships may run from six to twelve consecutive months, and stipends vary at the different centers. Eligibility for the fellowships also varies from center to center, but neither candidates for degrees nor persons seeking support for work toward degrees are eligible to apply.

For further information and application materials, write directly to the appropriate center.

In 1991-92, NEH fellowships will be available at each of the following centers:

Albright Institute of Archaeological Research (Jerusalem)
American Academy in Rome
American Antiquarian Society
American Institute of Indian Studies
American Philological Association/Thesaurus Linguae Latinae (Munich)
American Research Center in Egypt (Cairo)
Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences
Folger Shakespeare Library
Hagley Museum and Library
Institute of Early American History and Culture
John Carter Brown Library
National Humanities Center
Newberry Library
Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture--New York Public Library
School of American Research
Villa I Tatti--Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies
(Florence)
Winterthur Museum

The Humanities

In the act that established the National Endowment for the Humanities, the term humanities includes, but is not limited to, the study of the following disciplines: history; philosophy; languages; linguistics; literature; archaeology; jurisprudence; the history, theory, and criticism of the arts; ethics; comparative religion; and those aspects of the social sciences that employ historical or philosophical approaches.

CENTERS FOR ADVANCED STUDY

Albright Institute of Archaeological Research

The Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem is the oldest of the overseas research institutes of the American Schools of Oriental Research. The institute's building, completed in 1931, near Herod's Gate to the Old City of Jerusalem, houses a library of more than 12,000 volumes. The library furnishes a nucleus of scholarly materials for the study of the archaeology, history, literature, and religion of Syro-Palestine. The institute provides hostel and dining facilities for visiting scholars. Other facilities include drafting rooms, a darkroom, laboratories, and computer equipment. The institute welcomes scholars from all branches of ancient Near Eastern studies, including literary and biblical studies, art history, and anthropology from the Paleolithic to the Islamic period. One NEH fellowship is available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: September 30, 1990

Eric Meyers, President
American Schools of Oriental Research
711 W. 40th Street
Suite 354
Baltimore, Maryland 21211
301/889-1383

American Academy in Rome

The American Academy in Rome, founded in 1894 and chartered by Congress in 1905, is a working residential community of American scholars and creative artists. Scholarly research at the academy focuses on a variety of fields, among them classical studies and archaeology, postclassical studies (including medieval and renaissance studies), modern Italian studies, and the history of art. The academy's resources include a major research library of more than 106,000 volumes with particular strength in classical antiquity, Roman topography, and the history of art and architecture. They also include the Fototeca Unione, a research collection of more than 25,000 photographs of ancient sites in Italy, North Africa, and the Middle East. The work of the fellows is regularly presented through a series of seminars, colloquia, exhibitions, and concerts. There are weekly trips to historical monuments in Rome and lengthy visits twice each year to other parts of Italy and the Mediterranean. In addition, the academy participates in the unions of twenty-three other national academies in Rome. Some scholarly studies by fellows are published in the academy's Memoirs series, which is in the process of being reestablished. At least three NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: November 15, 1990

Adele Chatfield-Taylor, President
American Academy in Rome
41 East 65th Street
New York, New York 10021-6508
212/517-4200

American Antiquarian Society

The American Antiquarian Society maintains a major research library in American history, literature, and culture through 1876. Present are some 640,000 books, pamphlets, and broadsides; 15,000 newspaper titles; 200,000 pieces of graphic arts materials; 60,000 pieces of sheet music; and nearly 1,300 running feet of manuscripts. The society's holdings are especially strong for projects in bibliography; the history of printing and publishing; literature; the history of Puritanism; intellectual history; and social history, including the history of reform, family history, and women's history. Fellows are provided carrels in the library. They may rent rooms and prepare meals in the Goddard-Daniels House, which is the center for the society's educational and fellowship activities. Further opportunities for collegial association are provided by the society's Program in the History of the Book in American Culture; its seminars in early American political and social history, American literary history, and American bibliography and book trade history; lunchtime colloquia; and more informal gatherings. At least two AAS-NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: January 15, 1991

John B. Hench, Director of Research and Publication
American Antiquarian Society
185 Salisbury Street
Worcester, Massachusetts 01609
508/752-5813

American Institute of Indian Studies

The American Institute of Indian Studies, a consortium of more than forty U.S. colleges and universities, was founded in 1961 by scholars committed to increasing accurate, in-depth knowledge of India's culture, history, languages, and traditions. The institute's principal activity is the awarding of fellowships to support scholarly research in India on the broadest possible range of topics and disciplines in the humanities. With U.S. offices in Chicago and India headquarters in New Delhi, the institute maintains regional offices in Calcutta, Madras, and Pune. Each provides a meeting place for scholars and organized opportunities for seminars, receptions, and lectures. In addition, the institute maintains an Archives and Research Center for Ethnomusicology in New Delhi and a Center for Art and Archaeology in Varanasi. The staffs at these regional offices and centers obtain necessary clearances for the fellows from the Indian government, obtain fellows' affiliations with Indian academic and research institutions, and otherwise facilitate the fellows' scholarly research. The institute has sufficient rupees available each year to award approximately twenty-five long-term postdoctoral fellowships. For 1991-92, NEH will make supplementary funds in U.S. dollars available through the institute to up to five scholars of distinction or high promise in the humanities whose fixed expenses in this country would make it difficult or impossible for them to go to India on long-term fellowships paid entirely in rupees.

Application deadline: July 1, 1990

Joseph W. Elder, President
American Institute of Indian Studies
1130 E. 59th Street
Chicago, Illinois 60637
312/702-8638

American Philological Association/Thesaurus Linguae Latinae

The American Philological Association administers a fellowship for tenure at the Thesaurus Linguae Latinae (TLL) in Munich. This lexicographical project, under way for more than eighty years, aims at the production of an exhaustive lexicon of ancient Latin. The project is governed by an international commission representing national academies and learned societies in most European countries and the United States. The TLL possesses a fine library in the field of classics with particular emphasis on Latin language and lexicography. The TLL has a permanent staff and a body of fellows (currently from Austria, Britain, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and West Germany), who work together on the production of the thesaurus and pursue various individual projects in the study of Latin as well. Fellows at the TLL receive intensive training in Latin lexicography and the opportunity to work on specific articles in the thesaurus. Fellowship tenure will run from July 1991 through June 1992. One fellowship is available.

Application deadline: November 15, 1990

Harry B. Evans, Secretary-Treasurer
American Philological Association
Department of Classics
Fordham University
Bronx, New York 10458
212/579-2994

American Research Center in Egypt

The American Research Center In Egypt, Inc. (ARCE), a consortium of forty North American universities and museums, was founded in 1948 to promote research in Egypt. Its broad aims are to foster a fresh and more profound knowledge of Egypt and the Near East through scholarly research, to disseminate knowledge of Egypt, and to promote American-Egyptian cultural relations. In pursuit of these goals, ARCE supports archaeological projects conducted by research teams led by senior American scholars, a fellowship program that enables American scholars and students to conduct research in all periods and in all phases of Egyptian civilization, and special historical and literary projects in Egypt in archaeology, art history, Islamic studies, the humanities, and the social sciences, including development studies. The center, located in Cairo, provides a reference library and a meeting place for scholars. Its staff helps scholars obtain necessary clearances from the Egyptian government and otherwise facilitates their research. Three NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: November 30, 1990

Terry Walz, U.S. Director
American Research Center in Egypt
Hagop Kevorkian Center for Near Eastern Studies
New York University
50 Washington Square South
New York, New York 10012
212/998-8890

Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences

The Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences conducts a residential postdoctoral fellowship program for scholars from this country and abroad who show unusual promise or distinction as productive workers in their fields. Fellows are afforded opportunities for reading, study, reflection, and writing, as well as for participation in seminars and work groups. Each year, the center tries to bring together a group of fellows that is diverse in institutional and disciplinary background but that nonetheless includes some scholars with overlapping substantive or methodological interests. The center is committed to the idea that supporting the work of scholars in the humanities is essential to the center's mission. NEH fellowships have been awarded in anthropology, art history, classics, history, law, linguistics, literature, musicology, philosophy, and political science. Fellows must be nominated for consideration, and nominations are accepted from any member of the academic community. In recent years, the center has awarded from four to seven NEH fellowships yearly.

Application information: Nominations accepted at any time; fellowship arrangements normally completed nine to eighteen months in advance of fellowship tenure.

Robert A. Scott, Associate Director
Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences
202 Junipero Serra Boulevard
Stanford, California 94305
415/321-2052

Folger Shakespeare Library

Known internationally for its preeminent collections of Shakespearean and Elizabethan writings, the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C., is also a center for research in virtually every aspect of social, cultural, and political life from the medieval period to the nineteenth century. Its 250,000 books, 60,000 manuscripts, and 20,000 artworks and artifacts relate not only to the British Isles but also to the Continent and, to some extent, the New World. Fellows may join more than 3,500 registered readers and members of the Folger Institute in any of the series of seminars, conferences, workshops, symposia, lectures, and colloquia regularly scheduled at the library. Fellows also have easy access to the Library of Congress. At least two NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: November 1, 1990

Werner Gundersheimer, Director
Folger Shakespeare Library
201 East Capitol St., S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003
202/544-4600

Hagley Museum and Library

The Hagley Museum and Library enjoys a national reputation as a center for scholarly research in American business, technological, and social history. Its collections consist of more than 175,000 volumes (books, pamphlets, trade catalogues, and periodicals); 20,000 linear feet of manuscript and archival collections of the records of national business associations and regional and national businesses in such industries as chemicals, computers, oil, railroads, aerospace, iron and steel, utilities, banking, and shipbuilding; and more than 500,000 photographs. The center occupies a modern building on a nineteenth-century industrial site. Fellows are provided office space and limited secretarial support. Housing for both short- and long-term visits is available for fellows in historical houses located on the museum and library grounds. Fellows are encouraged to participate in the ongoing programs of the center, which include conferences, a spring seminar, and regular research lunches. At least three NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: November 15, 1990

Patrick B. Nolan, Executive Administrator
Center for the History of Business,
Technology, and Society
Hagley Museum and Library
P.O. Box 3630
Wilmington, Delaware 19807
302/658-2400

The Institute of Early American History and Culture

The Institute of Early American History and Culture supports study and publication in the colonial, revolutionary, and early national periods of American history up to about 1815; and in the related history of the British Isles, Europe, West Africa, and the Caribbean. Its field of interest embraces all aspects of early American life. Founded in 1943, the institute is an autonomous organization sponsored in part by the College of William and Mary and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. In addition to the awarding of postdoctoral fellowships, the institute is regularly involved in the planning and support of scholarly conferences. It publishes the William and Mary Quarterly and numerous monographs and documentary editions. Although fellows devote most of their time to research and writing, they are also encouraged to take part in the varied activities of the institute's staff, whose senior members and other fellows are all working scholars. Every year the institute offers a single two-year junior postdoctoral fellowship, one year of which is supported by NEH. The potential of the proposed project for book publication is a major factor in making the award.

Application deadline: November 15, 1990

Jean Butenhoff Lee, Director
The Institute of Early American History and Culture
Box 220
Williamsburg, Virginia 23187
804/221-1133

John Carter Brown Library

The John Carter Brown Library is an independently funded and administered center for advanced study on the campus of Brown University. The library's collection consists almost entirely of primary printed sources (books, pamphlets, and maps) relating to all aspects of the discovery, exploration, settlement, and development of the Americas, from Hudson Bay to Tierra del Fuego, during the colonial period (1493-ca. 1825). The library's principal holdings emphasize such areas as European impressions about the Americas, Braziliana, native American languages, American revolutionary pamphlets, and Caribbeana. The library awards approximately fifteen short-term fellowships each year (two to four months), which are open to citizens of every country, and two or three NEH-supported long-term fellowships (six to twelve months), which are open only to U.S. citizens and foreign nationals who have lived in the U.S. for the three years immediately preceding the application deadline. Fellows are invited to participate in the intellectual life of Brown University, as well as to join in the activities of the library itself.

Application deadline: January 15, 1991

Norman Fiering, Director and Librarian
The John Carter Brown Library
Box 1894
Providence, Rhode Island 02912
401/863-2725

National Humanities Center

The National Humanities Center offers thirty-five to forty fellowships annually for scholars in the humanities to work at the center during the academic year. In 1991-92, approximately twelve of these fellowships will be supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Fellowships are open to scholars in all fields of the humanities and also to individuals from other areas of knowledge or from professional and public life whose work has a humanistic dimension. Up to one-third of the center's fellowships are awarded to promising young scholars who are no more than ten years beyond the completion of their graduate training and are working on projects beyond the revision of their dissertations. Applications are evaluated by specialists in their fields of inquiry and by an interdisciplinary panel of distinguished scholars in the humanities. The center provides private offices, clerical assistance with the preparation of manuscripts, and daily delivery of books and research materials. The center's building includes facilities for lectures, seminars, conferences, and luncheons. The center is situated in the Research Triangle Park of North Carolina, between Chapel Hill, Durham, and Raleigh. The center's staff finds housing for fellows to rent in the area. In addition to a fellowship stipend, the center provides travel expenses to and from North Carolina for fellows and their immediate families.

Application deadline: October 15, 1990

Fellowship Program
National Humanities Center
7 Alexander Drive
P. O. Box 12256
Research Triangle Park, North Carolina 27709-2256
919/549-0661

Newberry Library

The Newberry Library, founded in 1887, is a privately endowed independent research library dedicated primarily to study in the humanities. Its collections are composed of more than 1.5 million volumes and 5 million manuscripts, with a strong general collection embracing history and the humanities within Western civilization from the late Middle Ages to the early twentieth century. Some of the Newberry's special collections are internationally noted, including materials in the following fields: discovery, exploration, and settlement of the New World; history of the native American; the American West; family and social history; literature and history of the Midwest, especially the Chicago Renaissance; the Renaissance in Europe; Portuguese and Luso-Brazilian history; cartography; music history and theory; printing; and early philology and linguistics. A variety of fellowships, conferences, and seminars enriches the Newberry's academic community. At least five NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: January 10, 1991

Richard H. Brown, Academic Vice President
The Newberry Library
60 West Walton Street
Chicago, Illinois 60610
312/943-9090

Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture - New York Public Library

The Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture is a research unit of the New York Public Library. It is devoted to collecting, preserving, and providing access to research resources on the black heritage. Established in 1926 as a reference collection, it has evolved into a comprehensive research library whose collections number more than 5 million items. They include more than 120,000 bound volumes, 85,000 microforms, 3.5 million manuscripts, 8,000 works of art, and 1,700 serials.

The Schomburg Center's Scholars-in-Residence Program assists scholars whose research and writing on black history and culture would benefit from extended access to the center's resources. The program supports postdoctoral research in the humanities on African, Afro-American, and Afro-Caribbean themes. Fellowships funded by the program allow recipients to spend from six to twelve months in residence at the Schomburg Center. Although fellows devote most of their time to research and writing, they are also encouraged to take part in the center's scholarly and educational program, which includes colloquia, symposia, seminars, forums, and research conferences. At least two NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: January 15, 1991

Arnold Rampersad and Hylan Lewis
Codirectors
Scholars-in-Residence Program
Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture
515 Malcolm X Boulevard
New York, New York 10037-1801
212/862-4141

School of American Research

Founded in 1907, the School of American Research is a center for advanced studies in anthropology and related disciplines. It is dedicated to supporting scholars and publishing original research that contributes to a better understanding of the culture, evolution, and behavior of the human species. The school pursues its goals through six programs: it supports resident scholars for year-long tenures; sponsors a series of advanced seminars; awards the J.I. Staley Prize to outstanding books in anthropology; maintains a research collection of southwestern native American art; publishes scholarly books; and holds educational events for the public. The Resident Scholar program offers fellows the time and facilities essential for creative intellectual pursuits. The school's unique campus provides an atmosphere that nourishes the scholarly spirit by combining solitude and freedom from academic responsibilities with the lively exchange of ideas found in an active community of scholars. Each resident scholar receives a stipend, an apartment and an office on the school's campus, library assistance, and other benefits during a tenure of nine months--September 1 through May 30. Three NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application Deadline: December 1, 1990

Douglas W. Schwartz, President
School of American Research
P.O. Box 2188
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87504-2188
505/982-3583

Villa I Tatti - The Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies

Villa I Tatti, located near Florence, is devoted to advanced study of the Italian Renaissance in all its aspects: the history of art; political, economic, and social history; the history of philosophy and religion; and the history of literature, music, and science. The center at I Tatti was founded on the principle that maturing scholars, working independently, profit by close association with each other, with leaders in their fields, and with scholars of various interests, ages, and levels of achievement. The center provides an excellent library of more than 100,000 volumes, an archive of more than 300,000 photographs, and private studies. In addition, fellows have access to libraries, archives, and collections in Florence, among the largest and most important in Italy. Fellowships are available to scholars in the earlier stages of their careers. At least three NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: October 15, 1990

Walter Kaiser, Director
Villa I Tatti - Harvard University
Center for Italian Renaissance Studies
Via di Vincigliata 26
50135 Florence, Italy
011 39 55 603 251

Winterthur Museum and Gardens

Winterthur is a center for advanced study of America's artistic, cultural, intellectual, and social history up to the early twentieth century. Its resources for advanced study include approximately 500,000 manuscripts, books, visual images, pamphlets, periodicals, printed ephemera, trade catalogues, and auction and exhibition catalogues in the Winterthur Library, and 89,000 domestic artifacts from the seventeenth century through the nineteenth century in the Winterthur Museum.

Winterthur sponsors a broad range of public and academic programs, scholarly conferences, and three graduate programs in both art conservation and American history with the University of Delaware. The institution publishes Winterthur Portfolio: A Journal of American Material Culture, conference proceedings, and scholarly books. Winterthur's Research Fellowship Program offers pre- and postdoctoral support to academic and museum scholars. Up to four scholars at a time are in residence. Fellows are provided with a library carrel, have 24-hour access to the library's circulating collections, and circulation privileges at nearby Morris Library of the University of Delaware. Scholars live in the Research Fellowship Residence on the grounds at Winterthur, a comfortable stone house that can be easily reached by foot from the museum and library. It has been recently renovated and is fully furnished and equipped for scholars with personal computers. Two NEH fellowships are available for 1991-92.

Application deadline: December 1, 1990

Dr. Katharine Martinez, Director
Research Fellowship Program
Winterthur Museum, Garden, and Library
Winterthur, Delaware 19735
302/888-4627

Equal Opportunity

The National Endowment for the Humanities is responsible for ensuring compliance with and enforcement of laws prohibiting discrimination because of race, color, national origin, sex, handicap, and age in programs and activities receiving federal assistance. Endowment grant recipients are responsible for complying with these laws. For additional information concerning these obligations, or if you believe that you have been discriminated against in any program, activity, or facility receiving federal assistance from the Endowment, please write immediately to the director, Office of Equal Opportunity, National Endowment for the Humanities, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506.

Note:

If a proposed project relates to American Indians, Aleuts, Eskimos, or native Hawaiian people and artifacts, an applicant should obtain from the Endowment a copy of its Code of Ethics concerning native Americans. The code establishes certain standards of conduct in research, publication, and public programs involving native American peoples.

R90-10