Introduction

The National Endowment for the Humanities, through its fellowship programs, encourages and supports advanced study and research in humanistic disciplines by individuals of diverse interests, backgrounds, and circumstances: senior scholars; younger humanists; non-academics; faculty members at institutions which are oriented toward research; teachers of undergraduates at two-year, four-year, and five-year colleges and universities.

Various projects and activities are eligible for support: projects designed to enhance an individual's teaching; studies of a broad, interpretive intent; highly specialized research; and projects designed to develop or enlarge an individual's understanding of the humanities.

NEH Fellows need not have advanced degrees, but neither candidates for degrees nor persons seeking support for work toward a degree are eligible to apply.

Fellowships are offered through three programs, two providing for independent work and one for seminar work. An individual may not apply in the same year for both a Fellowship for Independent Study and Research and a Fellowship for College Teachers. A person may apply to one of these programs and also to the program of Residential Fellowships for College Teachers, but may not receive more than one award in a given year.

Fellowships for Independent Study and Research

Tenure: 6 or 12 Months
Stipend: Up to $22,000
Application Deadline: June 2, 1980
Award Announcement: Early Dec., 1980

These fellowships are for scholars and other interpreters of the humanities who can make significant contributions to humanistic thought and knowledge. Applications are welcome from college and university faculty members and from others who work in the humanities, from people with broad humanistic interests as well as from scholars working in specialties. While continuing its commitment to the work of established, senior scholars, the Endowment, through this program, particularly wishes to encourage and sustain the work of younger scholars. This includes both those who hold the rank of instructor or assistant professor and those who, while not employed by any academic institution, stand at an early stage of their careers.

Fellowships for College Teachers

Tenure: 6 or 12 Months
Stipend: Up to $22,000
Application Deadline: June 2, 1980
Award Announcement: Early Dec., 1980

These fellowships provide opportunities for college teachers to pursue full-time independent study and research that will enhance their abilities as teachers and interpreters of the humanities. The program is intended for teachers in two-year, four-year, and five-year colleges and universities which do not have means to support advanced study and research, and work proposed may be either a program of general study or a research project, whichever individual applicants judge to be more appropriate to their needs and concerns.

Residential Fellowships for College Teachers

Tenure: 9 or 12 Months
Stipend: Up to $20,000
Application Deadline: November 10, 1980
Award Announcement: Early March, 1981

These fellowships provide opportunities for teachers in undergraduate colleges to participate in seminars directed by distinguished scholars at designated universities and to undertake research and study of their own choosing beyond the work of the seminars. Teachers in two-year, four-year, and five-year colleges and universities are eligible to apply. Faculty members of departments with doctoral programs are not eligible to apply to this program. Former recipients of Residential Fellowships for College Teachers are no longer excluded from applying for participation in these seminars, although strong preference will be given to applicants who have not had major fellowships in recent years.
