NEH Fellowships

NEH Fellowships provide support for work on projects that will make significant contributions to thought and knowledge in the humanities. These fellowships are awarded through two programs, Fellowships for University Teachers and Fellowships for College Teachers and Independent Scholars, and the program to which a person applies depends on the individual's institutional affiliation or circumstance.

Application Deadline: May 1, 1994

Tenure: Tenure must cover an uninterrupted period of from six to twelve months. The earliest that Fellows may begin tenure is January 1, 1995. The latest that Fellows who are teachers may begin tenure is the start of the spring term of the 1995-96 academic year. The latest that Fellows who are not teachers may begin tenure is April 1, 1996.

Maximum Stipend: $30,000

The Humanities

In the act that established the National Endowment for the Humanities, the term humanities includes, but is not limited to, the study of the following disciplines: history; philosophy; languages; linguistics; literature; archaeology; jurisprudence; the history, theory, and criticism of the arts; ethics; comparative religion; and those aspects of the social sciences that employ historical or philosophical approaches.

Purpose and Scope

Through its Fellowships programs, NEH provides opportunities for individuals to pursue advanced work in disciplines of the humanities. Projects proposed for support may contribute to scholarly knowledge or to the general public's understanding of the humanities, and they may address broad topics or consist of research and study in a single field.

The Fellowships programs are designed to support people with a range of experience in a variety of circumstances: faculty and staff members of schools, colleges, and universities; scholars and writers working in institutions with research or educational collections, such as museums, libraries, and historical societies; scholars and writers working in institutions with no connection to the humanities; and scholars and writers working independently.

General Eligibility

Applicants need not have advanced degrees, but neither candidates for degrees nor persons seeking support for work leading to a degree are eligible to apply for these NEH Fellowships.

Selection Procedures

Reviewers consider the significance of the proposed project to the humanities, the quality of the applicant's work, the conception and description of the project, and the likelihood that the work will be accomplished.
