THE NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

In order “to promote progress and scholarship in the humanities and the arts in the United States,” Congress enacted the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965. This act established the National Endowment for the Humanities as an independent grant-making agency of the federal government to support research, education, and public programs in the humanities.

The Humanities

The act that established the National Endowment for the Humanities says “The term ‘humanities’ includes, but is not limited to, the study of the following: language, both modern and classical; linguistics; literature; history; jurisprudence; philosophy; archaeology; comparative religion; ethics; the history, criticism, and theory of the arts; those aspects of social sciences which have humanistic content and employ humanistic methods; and the study and application of the humanities to the human environment with particular attention to reflecting our diverse heritage, traditions, and history and to the relevance of the humanities to the current conditions of national life.”

Organization of the Endowment

Grants are made through four divisions (Education Programs, Preservation and Access, Public Programs, and Research Programs) and two offices (Challenge Grants and the Federal/State Partnership).

Equal Opportunity Statement

Endowment programs do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, disability, or age. For further information, write to Equal Employment Opportunity Officer, National Endowment for the Humanities, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20506. TDD: 202/606-8282 (this is a special Telephone Device for the Deaf).

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES THROUGH CENTERS FOR ADVANCED STUDY AND INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH ORGANIZATIONS

The National Endowment for the Humanities provides support to independent centers for advanced study and international research organizations for fellowship programs for humanities scholars through its Fellowship Programs at Independent Research Institutions (FPIRI). NEH fellowships at these institutions provide scholars with a collegial environment and access to resources that might not be available at their home institutions. Fellowship programs may be administered by independent centers for advanced study, libraries, and museums in the United States, or American overseas research centers or other organizations that have expertise in promoting research on foreign cultures. The centers and organizations establish their own peer review procedures for the selection of NEH grant recipients and administer the awards. Tenure of the fellowships at residential centers is usually for a minimum of four months, and stipends may also vary. Grants made through international research organizations vary in tenure and amount. Eligibility for NEH fellowships and research awards is limited to United States citizens and foreign nationals who have been residents in the United States for the three years immediately preceding the application deadline for the grant. NEH research opportunities are intended for persons who have already completed their formal academic training. Consequently, persons seeking support for work in pursuit of a degree are not eligible for NEH fellowships and research grants. Some of the institutions listed below support predoctoral students with private funding; interested applicants should contact the organizations or centers directly.

For further information and application materials, contact the appropriate center or organization. No application materials are available from the Endowment.

In 2003-2004, NEH fellowships will be available at each of the following centers:

American Antiquarian Society
Folger Shakespeare Library
The Huntington
Institute for Advanced Study, School of Historical Studies
Institute for Advanced Study, School of Social Science
John Carter Brown Library
Massachusetts Historical Society
National Humanities Center
Newberry Library
Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture
Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture – New York Public Library
School of American Research
Winterthur Museum, Garden, and Library

NEH fellowships and other research grants supporting international research will also be available through the following American overseas centers and international research organizations:

Albright Institute of Archaeological Research (Jerusalem)
American Academy in Rome
American Center of Oriental Research (Amman)
American Council of Learned Societies: American Research in Humanities in the People's Republic of China
American Council of Learned Societies in cooperation with the Social Science Research Council: International Postdoctoral Fellowships

CENTERS FOR ADVANCED STUDY IN THE UNITED STATES

American Antiquarian Society

The American Antiquarian Society (AAS) maintains a major research library in American history, literature, and culture through 1876. The library includes some 700,000 books and pamphlets; 20,000 newspaper titles; 200,000 pieces of graphic arts materials including broadsides, political cartoons, maps, and photographs; 60,000 pieces of sheet music; and nearly 1,600 collections of manuscripts. The society's holdings are especially rich for projects in the history of the book, including bibliography and the history of printing and publishing; literature; the history of Puritanism; cultural history; intellectual history; American state and local history; and social history, including the history of reform, family history, and women's history. The collections are strong chronologically from the early colonial period to the late nineteenth century. The AAS-NEH fellows are part of a community that includes the AAS staff, area faculty, and the recipients of AAS short-term fellowships (including scholars from all over the U.S. and abroad, Ph.D. candidates, and creative artists and writers producing work for the general public) and other long-term fellows. Further opportunities for collegial association are provided by the society's Program in the History of the Book in American Culture; its series of seminars in American history and culture through 1876; lunchtime colloquia; public lectures; and more informal gatherings. At least two AAS-NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

Folger Shakespeare Library

Known internationally for its preeminent collections of Shakespearean and Elizabethan writings, the Folger Shakespeare Library is also a center for research on virtually every aspect of social, cultural, and political life from the medieval period to the mid-eighteenth century. The Folger holds the largest collection outside Britain of early English books, with about 50,000 volumes from the period 1475-1700 and 30,000 eighteenth-century imprints. Its early Continental imprint collection of 35,000 volumes includes 450 incunables, a 2,000-volume Reformation collection, and significant holdings in French and Dutch political pamphlets. The manuscript collection, which numbers 55,000, is especially strong in early correspondence and commonplace books and is extended by such microfilm holdings as the State Papers Domestic from Edward VI through Charles I and papers from the Cecil, Loseley, Harleian, and Lansdowne collections. In secondary materials, the Library holds approximately 85,000 titles. Fellows may join readers and members of the Folger Institute in any of the series of seminars, conferences, workshops, symposia, lectures, and colloquia regularly scheduled at the library. Fellows also have easy access to the Library of Congress. Three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

The Huntington

The Huntington is an independent research center with extensive holdings in British and American history, literature, art history, and the history of science and medicine. These collections range chronologically from the ninth century to the present. The Library contains approximately 500,000 rare books, pamphlets, extra-illustrated books, maps, and ephemera, 500,000 reference works, nearly 5 million manuscripts, and 600,000 photographs. Published guides are available for the American, British, medieval, and literary manuscript collections. The Art Division holds 75,000 British and American paintings, drawings, watercolors, and fine prints. The Smithsonian Archives of American Art also has a center at the Huntington. There are separate reference libraries in the Art and Botanical Divisions. The Research Division supports an extensive fellowship program to fund short-term fellows and sponsors a number of conferences, lectures, and seminars. Up to three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

Institute for Advanced Study, School of Historical Studies

The Institute for Advanced Study was founded in 1930 as a community of scholars in which intellectual inquiry can be carried out in the most favorable circumstances. It provides Members with libraries, offices, seminar and lecture rooms, subsidized restaurant and housing facilities, and some secretarial and word-processing services. The School of Historical Studies supports scholarship in all fields of historical research, but it is concerned principally with the history of western and near eastern civilization, with particular emphasis upon Greek and Roman civilization, the history of Europe (medieval, early modern, and modern), the Islamic world, East Asian studies, the history of art, and modern international relations. The School also offers the Edward T. Cone Membership in Music Studies. Qualified candidates of any nationality are invited to apply for memberships. Residence in Princeton during term time is required. The only other obligation of Members is to pursue their own research. If they wish, Members may participate in seminars and meetings both within the Institute and at nearby universities, and there are ample opportunities for contacts with other scholars. Approximately forty Members are appointed for either one or two terms each year. The Ph.D. (or equivalent) and substantial publications are required of all candidates at the time of application. Member awards are funded by the Institute for Advanced Study or by other sources, including the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Thyssen Foundation. About three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

Institute for Advanced Study, School of Social Science

The Institute for Advanced Study was founded in 1930 and since its beginning has been internationally recognized as one of the world's foremost centers for theoretical research and intellectual inquiry. There are four schools: historical studies, social science, mathematics, and natural sciences. Located on an 800-acre site, the institute is totally independent of Princeton University; however, there is a great deal of intellectual, cultural, and social interaction. The School of Social Science is devoted to a multidisciplinary, comparative, and international approach to social science research and brings together scholars with various perspectives to examine historical and contemporary problems. Disciplines represented in the school have included history, philosophy, and literary studies as well as anthropology, politics, economics, sociology, and other social science disciplines. The school organizes a weekly seminar at which members as well as invited guests present their ongoing work. Each year there is also a general theoretical or empirical focus that provides common ground for roughly half of the members. Fifteen to eighteen postdoctoral fellows are selected each year. Three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

John Carter Brown Library

The John Carter Brown Library is an independently funded and administered center for advanced study in history and the humanities, located on the campus of Brown University since 1904. The library's collection consists almost entirely of primary printed sources (books, pamphlets, maps) and some manuscripts, relating to all aspects of the discovery, exploration, settlement, and development of the Americas, from Hudson Bay to Tierra del Fuego, during the colonial period (1493-ca. 1825). The library's principal holdings emphasize such diverse areas as European accounts of the Americas, Braziliana, native American languages, American revolutionary pamphlets, and Caribbeana. Maritime history and the comparative history of the Americas—Spanish, Portuguese, French, Dutch, English, African, Amerindian—are particular subjects of interest, as is the general history of European expansion to the West before ca. 1800. The library awards approximately twenty short-term fellowships (two to four months) each year, which are open to citizens of every country and to both pre- and post-doctoral scholars, and several long-term fellowships (five to nine months), supported by the NEH, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and other agencies. NEH fellowships are restricted to U.S. citizens or to foreign nationals who have been legal residents of this country for the three years immediately preceding the application deadline for the grant. Candidates for long-term fellowships may not be engaged in work leading to a graduate degree. Prospective applicants should write to the John Carter Brown Library for further details and for application forms or may access the Library's web site. Two or three NEH fellowships will be available for 2004-2005.

Massachusetts Historical Society

The Massachusetts Historical Society (MHS) was founded in 1791 for the threefold purpose of collecting, preserving, and disseminating resources for the study of American history. It was the first institution anywhere to devote its attention primarily to collecting and publishing in the field. Today the society's manuscripts form the centerpiece of its holdings. It has more than 10,000,000 manuscript items in 3,500 collections of personal papers and institutional records. These holdings cover such diverse subjects as the history of religion, law, education, and medicine; diplomacy and international commerce; the American Revolution and the Civil War; and Native American and women's history. Although collections in the history of New England and in the period from colonization through the late 19th century are especially strong, the society also has significant materials for the study of the West Indies, Latin America, the China trade, and the 20th century. The society's collection of 250,000 published items complements its manuscript holdings. Printed materials include more than 20,000 broadsides, 30,000 18th- and 19th-century pamphlets, and 5,000 maps. The society also owns more than 150,000 microforms and 200,000 historic photographs as well as major collections of portraits, engravings, silhouettes, busts, and memorabilia. The staff does all it can to make the MHS a friendly, welcoming place for researchers. MHS-NEH fellows join a community that includes active scholars on the staff as well as more than two dozen visiting scholars on short-term grants over the course of a typical year. An active calendar of programs affords frequent opportunities to meet with scholars from across New England. The society hosts three ongoing seminar series—in early American history, immigration and urban history, and environmental history—as well as frequent brown-bag lunches at which fellows and other researchers discuss their work. Most years the MHS also holds a major conference; recent topics have included the political career of John Adams, Transcendentalism, immigration to Massachusetts, and the intellectual life of Henry Adams. During the spring of 2004, the Society will hold a conference entitled “Women/War/Work,” an investigation of women's role in warfare. The MHS will award at least one MHS-NEH fellowship for 2004-2005. For additional information or to apply, contact the Massachusetts Historical Society.

National Humanities Center

The National Humanities Center offers forty residential fellowships annually for scholars in the humanities to work at the Center during the academic year. In 2004-2005, four of the Center's fellowships will be supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Fellowships are open to scholars in all fields of the humanities and also to individuals from other fields of inquiry or from professional and public life if their work has a humanistic dimension. The Center welcomes applications from senior scholars and from promising young scholars. The intellectual community of the Center includes scholars from all parts of the U.S. and scholars from other nations. Applications are evaluated by specialists and by an interdisciplinary panel of distinguished scholars in the humanities. At the Center, each Fellow has a private study. The Center provides assistance with the preparation of manuscripts, support for electronic technology, and daily delivery of books and research materials. The Center's building includes facilities for lectures, seminars, and conferences. Breakfast and lunch are served daily. The Center is situated in the Research Triangle Park of North Carolina, adjacent to Chapel Hill, Durham, and Raleigh. The Center locates housing for Fellows in these communities. In addition to a fellowship stipend of up to $40,000, the Center provides travel expenses to and from North Carolina for Fellows and their immediate families and $500 for shipping and research support.

Newberry Library

The Newberry Library, founded in 1887, is a privately endowed independent research library dedicated primarily to study in the humanities. Its collections comprise more than 1.5 million volumes and 5 million manuscripts, with a strong general collection focused on Europe and the Americas from the late Middle Ages to the twentieth century. The Newberry's internationally noted special collections include materials in the following fields: discovery, exploration, and settlement of the New World; history of Native Americans; the American West; family and community history; literature and history of the Midwest, especially the Chicago Renaissance; the Renaissance in Europe; Portuguese and Luso-Brazilian history; cartography; music history and theory; printing; and early philology and linguistics. A variety of fellowships, conferences, and seminars enriches the Newberry's academic community. Three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture

The Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture supports study and publication in early American history from the sixteenth century to approximately 1815. Its field of interest encompasses all aspects of the lives of North America's indigenous and immigrant peoples during the colonial, revolutionary, and early national periods of the United States and the related histories of Africa, the British Isles, the Caribbean, Europe, and Latin America. Founded in 1943 as the Institute of Early American History and Culture by the College of William and Mary and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and still jointly sponsored by those institutions, the Institute was renamed in 1996 in recognition of a generous endowment pledged by Mr. and Mrs. Malvern H. Omohundro, Jr. The Institute publishes the William and Mary Quarterly, monographs, documentary editions, and a newsletter, regularly plans and supports scholarly conferences, and annually offers one two-year postdoctoral fellowship, a year of which is supported by the NEH, and a one-year Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Research Fellowship. Fellows are encouraged to participate with the senior staff of working scholars in the Institute's varied academic activities, in addition to conducting their own research. Institute/NEH fellows also have the option of spending a summer at the Huntington Library, on a full grant, within five years of their residency in Williamsburg. The potential of an applicant's project for book publication by the Institute is a major factor in awarding both fellowships.

Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture – New York Public Library

The Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture is a research unit of the New York Public Library. It is devoted to collecting, preserving, and providing access to research resources on the black experience. Established in 1926 as a reference collection, it has evolved into a comprehensive research library whose collections number more than 5 million items. They include more than 175,000 bound volumes, 1,700 serials, 85,000 microforms, 3.5 million manuscripts, 20,000 works of art, 500,000 photographic images, 25,000 sound recordings, 4,000 hours of spoken arts, 4,000 video recordings, and 400 motion picture films. The Schomburg Center's Scholars-in-Residence Program assists scholars whose research and writing on black history and culture would benefit from extended access to the Center's resources. The program supports postdoctoral research in the humanities on African, Afro-American, and Afro-Caribbean themes. Fellowships funded by the program allow recipients to spend from six to twelve months in residence at the Schomburg Center. Although fellows devote most of their time to research and writing, they are also encouraged to take part in the center's scholarly and educational program, which includes colloquia, symposia, seminars, forums, and research conferences. Approximately two NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

School of American Research

Founded in 1907, the School of American Research is a center for advanced studies in anthropology and related disciplines. It is dedicated to supporting scholars and publishing original research that contributes to a better understanding of human culture, evolution, and behavior. The School pursues its goals through six programs. It supports resident scholars, conducts advanced seminars, awards the J.I. Staley Prize for outstanding books in anthropology, maintains a research collection of southwestern native American art, publishes scholarly books, and sponsors educational events for the public. The Resident Scholar program offers fellows the time and facilities essential for creative intellectual pursuits. The School's unique campus provides an atmosphere that nourishes the scholarly spirit by combining solitude and freedom from academic responsibilities with the lively exchange of ideas found in an active community of scholars. Resident scholars receive a stipend, an apartment and an office on the School's campus, library assistance, and other benefits during a tenure of nine months: September 1 through May 31. Up to three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

Winterthur Museum, Garden, and Library

Winterthur is a public museum, library, and garden that supports the advanced study of American art, history, and culture. The collections include primarily American material with strong supporting resources in British and Continental art and culture. Winterthur offers an extensive program of research fellowships open to academic, independent, and museum scholars. The library holds more than 87,000 volumes and half a million manuscripts and images. Resources include visual materials, trade catalogues, auction and exhibition catalogues, printed books and ephemera for research from the seventeenth century to the early twentieth century. Please visit our web site for an on-line catalog. Museum collections include 85,000 domestic artifacts and works of art made or used in America to 1860. The collections support research in art history, material culture, and the decorative arts as well as, for example, the history of manners, the body, travel and tourism, Shaker studies, domestic life, memory, women's/men's culture, and childhood. Winterthur sponsors a broad range of public and academic programs. The museum also publishes scholarly books and Winterthur Portfolio: A Journal of American Material Culture. NEH fellows are provided with office space and computer support, 24-hour access to the library's circulating collections, and circulation privileges at nearby Morris Library of the University of Delaware. Fellows participate in seminars, colloquia, and social events at Winterthur, the University, and other area museums. A furnished stone farmhouse on the Winterthur grounds serves as the fellows' residence. One to three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

AMERICAN OVERSEAS CENTERS FOR ADVANCED STUDY AND INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH ORGANIZATIONS

Albright Institute of Archaeological Research, Jerusalem

The W. F. Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem (AIAR) was originally established as the principal overseas center of the American Schools of Oriental Research (ASOR), founded in 1900. In 1970, AIAR was incorporated as an independent institution and renamed after its most distinguished director, W. F. Albright. Since then, AIAR, one of ASOR's three affiliated centers, has continued the American Schools' tradition of promoting and supporting resident pre-doctoral and post-doctoral research in ancient Near Eastern studies, including the disciplines of archaeology, language, literature, history, biblical studies, religion, the history of art and architecture, and anthropology. Its annual program is composed of a series of more than 85 lectures, reports, seminars, workshops, field trips, and social events organized according to its fellows' interests. More than fifty fellows from the United States and twelve other countries, including Bulgaria, Canada, England, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Korea, Nigeria, Poland, Romania, and Spain as well as those from the Israeli and Palestinian academic communities participate mainly as long-term research appointees each year. The Albright Institute, located near the Old City of Jerusalem, includes a research library, workshops, computer facilities, and a residence with a hostel and apartments. The living accommodations provide rooms for thirty people, a served dinner, self-service breakfast, and a garden area for tea and coffee. The library, dedicated to Near Eastern studies, contains more than 27,500 volumes, over 450 journal titles, and significant map and artifact collections. In addition to administrative and library computers, the fellows have access to a wide range of hardware and extensive software programs, and hostel rooms are wired for web access and e-mail communications. AIAR also serves as a support base for numerous short-term scholars and visitors and for a large number of staff, student, and volunteer participants in the twenty-four annual excavation and publication projects affiliated with ASOR. AIAR conducts, with the Hebrew University, a joint excavation and publication project at the Philistine site of Tel Mique-Ekron. It is also the organizing institution for an international research project, The Neo-Assyrian Empire in the 7th Century BC: A Study of the Interaction between Center and Periphery. This project, under the aegis of the Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC), located at the Smithsonian Institution, involves 50 scholars working in Bahrain, Cyprus, Egypt, Greece, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Spain, Syria, Tunisia, and Turkey. The Albright annually awards up to four NEH fellowships, for periods ranging from four to twelve months, with a maximum grant of $40,000.

American Academy in Rome

The American Academy in Rome is one of the leading centers for independent study and advanced research in the arts and humanities. For over 100 years, the Academy has offered support, time, and an inspiring environment to some of America's most gifted artists and scholars. In the historic setting of Rome, Academy artists and scholars pursue their work independently and exchange ideas with one another as well as with Italian colleagues. The Academy's resources include a library with over 128,000 volumes in the fields of classical studies and the history of art and architecture. Especially strong are the collections in classical archaeology and art, Greek and Latin literature, ancient topography (including the history of the city of Rome), ancient religions and related fields such as epigraphy, numismatics, and papyrology. There is a good working collection in the history of art and architecture, especially Italian, as well as a rare book collection. The library also houses small but noteworthy collections in contemporary art and architecture, landscape architecture, Italian history, American literature, historical travel literature, and music. In addition, the photographic archive provides a visual record of the architecture and topography of ancient Rome and Italy and the Roman Empire, for the purposes of scholarship, research, and publication. The Photographic Archive also preserves and provides access to collections on archaeology, art and architecture, landscape architecture, and gardens. Each year the Academy invites applications for its prestigious Rome Prize Competition. Through a nationally juried process, up to 30 Rome Prize fellowships are awarded in the arts and humanities. Within the humanities, the Academy accepts applications in the following fields: Ancient Studies (through the 6th century), Medieval Studies (6th through the 14th centuries), Renaissance and Early Modern Studies (14th through the 18th centuries) and Modern Italian Studies (18th century to the present). The Academy invites proposals in archaeology, history, the history of art and architecture, literature, and musicology. These disciplines are intended to be suggestive, and comparative projects that cut across the chronological limits listed above are welcome. The annual deadline for the Rome Prize is November 1. Three 11-month NEH post-doctoral fellowships are available in 2004-2005. These fellowship winners receive room and board, a study, and a stipend of $21,000. For further information on the Academy or to download the Rome Prize application form, please visit the Academy's web site.

American Council of Learned Societies: American Research in the Humanities in the People's Republic of China

American research in the humanities in China is supported by the American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS) and its affiliate the Committee on Scholarly Communication with China (CSCC), which administers the program inside China. The program supports a very limited number of fellowships. It is open to scholars in the humanities and humanities-related social sciences who have received their Ph.D. or its equivalent by the time of application. Support is offered to specialists in all fields of the humanities and humanities-related social sciences. Applicants must submit a carefully formulated research proposal that reflects an understanding of the present Chinese academic and research environment. The proposal should include a persuasive statement of the need to conduct the research in China. Those submitting a joint proposal must apply individually. Grant tenure is from four months to one year of research in China. The grant period must fall between July 1, 2004 and December 31, 2005. However, grantees planning to begin using grants as early as July 2004 must be prepared to delay entry into China if it is not possible to secure placement or funding before September. Grants will include allotments for travel, extraordinary living expenses, research expenses, and academic-year salary replacement. No support is offered for summer salary. The award will be reduced if the candidate also receives full or partial salary during the grant period. There is no financial support for dependents. Basic eligibility requirements at the time of application include: US citizenship or permanent resident status with three years continuous residence in the US, and a Ph.D. degree or equivalent.

American Council of Learned Societies and Social Science Research Council: International Postdoctoral Fellowships

The ACLS is a private federation of 67 national scholarly organizations dedicated to the advancement of humanistic scholarship in all fields of learning. The SSRC is an international association devoted to the advancement of interdisciplinary research in the social sciences. Jointly they offer postdoctoral fellowships to encourage humanities research in area studies. Special funding by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the ACLS has been set aside for at least ten ACLS/SSRC/NEH International and Area Studies Fellows, to be designated among the successful applicants to the central ACLS Fellowships competition. Scholars who have completed the Ph.D. or equivalent by October 1, 2003, may apply for six- to twelve-month fellowships to pursue research and writing on the societies and cultures of Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, the Middle East, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. Completed applications must be submitted through the ACLS Online Fellowship Application system (OFA) no later than 9 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time, October 1, 2003. OFA is accessible at <http://ofa.acsls.org> or through the Fellowship and Grant Programs section of the ACLS web site.

American Councils for International Education: ACTR/ACCELS and the National Council on Eurasian and East European Research

American Councils is a private, not-for-profit organization promoting the development and exchange of knowledge between the U.S. and Eastern Europe/Eurasia. Its mission is to foster independence and democratic development by advancing education and research, cultivating leadership, and empowering individuals and institutions through learning. American Councils programs include academic exchange, professional training, distance learning, curriculum and test development, delivery of technical assistance and consulting services, research and evaluation, and institution building. American Councils has 47 offices in 17 countries of Eastern Europe, Eurasia, and Afghanistan and a full-time professional staff of over 450 to support its programs in the region. The National Council for Eurasian and East European Research (NCEEER) has operated for over two decades to support research in the humanities and social sciences on Eastern Europe and Eurasia by providing grants to U.S. scholars and researchers. The NEH Collaborative Research Fellowship Program supports in-country research and travel for U.S. scholars engaged in or planning collaborative research projects in the humanities with researchers in any country of Eastern Europe or Eurasia; up to five NEH grants will be awarded for resident fellowships in these areas. Research topics are not restricted to regional or area studies, but must involve research in the region and a collaborator in the region. American Councils and NCEEER can also assist in locating collaborators in the region who may be interested in working with U.S. scholars.

American Institute of Indian Studies

The American Institute of Indian Studies, a consortium of fifty-one U.S. colleges and universities, was founded in 1961 by scholars committed to increasing accurate, intensive knowledge of India's culture, history, languages, and traditions. The institute's principal activity is the awarding of fellowships to support scholarly research in India on the broadest possible range of topics and disciplines in the humanities. With U.S. offices in Chicago and headquarters in New Delhi, the institute maintains regional offices in Calcutta, Chennai, and Pune. Each provides a meeting place for scholars and organized opportunities for seminars, receptions, and lectures. In addition, the institute maintains an Archives and Research Center for Ethnomusicology and a Center for Art and Archaeology, both located at the main administrative center at Gurgaon, just outside Delhi. The staffs at these regional offices and centers obtain necessary clearances for the fellows from the Indian government, secure affiliations for fellows with Indian academic and research institutions, and otherwise facilitate the fellows' scholarly research. The institute awards approximately eighteen long-term doctoral fellowships, ten long-term postdoctoral fellowships, and a few short-term postdoctoral fellowships, all payable in rupees. The fellowships are awarded to scholars of distinction or high promise in all academic disciplines. For 2004-2005, NEH will supplement up to four fellowships in the humanities with U.S. dollars.

American Philological Association/Thesaurus Linguae Latinae

The American Philological Association invites applications for a one-year fellowship, tenable from July 2004 through June 2005, with the possibility of renewal for one additional year, which will enable an American scholar to participate in the work of the Thesaurus Linguae Latinae Institute in Munich. Fellows at the TLL develop a broadened perspective of the range and complexity of the Latin language and culture from the classical period through the early Middle Ages, contribute signed articles to the Thesaurus, have the opportunity to participate in a collaborative international research project, and work with senior scholars in the field of Latin lexicography. The fellowship carries a stipend in the amount of $40,000 and is made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Applicants must be United States citizens or permanent residents, already have the Ph.D., or anticipate the award of the degree by July 1, 2004. The fellowship offers valuable experience for scholars in a variety of specialties (e.g., Latin language and literature, Roman law, Roman history, the literature of early Christianity); although it is not limited to individuals working in Latin philology, applicants should possess a thorough familiarity with and a special interest in the Latin language. It is anticipated that applicants will already have a reading knowledge of German and will be willing to work toward proficiency in spoken German. Further details will be sent to applicants upon request. Women and members of minority groups underrepresented in classics are particularly encouraged to apply. Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a statement of what benefits the applicant expects to derive from the Fellowship for his/her research and teaching, and the names of three referees, whom the applicant should ask to send supporting letters to the Executive Director without further notice. Candidates will be considered by the APA's TLL Fellowship Committee, which serves as the selection committee. The committee will choose a short list of candidates to be invited for interview at the Annual Meeting in January 2004 in San Francisco, California, and the name of the successful candidate will be announced shortly thereafter. Applications must be received by the deadline.

American Research Center in Egypt

The American Research Center in Egypt, Inc. (ARCE), a consortium of forty-five North American universities and museums, was founded in 1948 to promote research in Egypt. Its broad aims are to foster a fresh and more profound knowledge of Egypt and the Near East through scholarly research, to disseminate knowledge of Egypt, and to promote American-Egyptian cultural relations. In pursuit of these goals, ARCE supports archaeological projects conducted by research teams led by senior American scholars, a fellowship program that enables American scholars and graduate students to conduct research in all periods and in all phases of Egyptian civilization, and special historical and literary projects in Egypt in archaeology, art history, Islamic studies, the humanities, and the humanistic social sciences. Under a special grant from USAID, ARCE is engaged in a multiproject effort to help Egyptians conserve and preserve their historical monuments. The Center, located in Cairo, provides a reference library and a meeting place for scholars. Its staff helps scholars obtain necessary clearances from the Egyptian government and otherwise facilitates their research. Three to four NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005. In addition, two short-term fellowships are available for curators for 2004-2007; recipients of curatorial fellowships will be on fellowship tenure for four to six weeks each year for three consecutive years.

American Research Institute in Turkey

The American Research Institute in Turkey (ARIT), a consortium of thirty-two North American universities and museums, was founded in 1964 to promote research and study in Turkey, and to enhance mutual understanding between the U.S. and Turkey. ARIT maintains centers in Istanbul and Ankara to support American researchers and to provide full-time representation in Turkey for American institutions of higher education. Administered by U.S. directors, each branch provides researchers with an institutional affiliation, a base of operations, orientation assistance, and introductions to host-country scholars. In Istanbul, ARIT maintains a research facility with a 9,000-volume library in Byzantine, Ottoman, and modern Turkish studies. In Ankara, scholars have access to a 6,500-volume library on archaeology and modern Turkey. ARIT's fellowship program supports individual research projects in all fields of the humanities and social sciences. Scholars who have completed their formal academic training may submit applications in humanistic fields such as anthropology, prehistory, history, art, archaeology, literature, and linguistics, as well as interdisciplinary aspects of cultural history. Two or three NEH fellowships are available for 2004-2005.

American School of Classical Studies at Athens

Founded in 1881, the American School of Classical Studies at Athens is the most significant resource in Greece for American scholars in the fields of ancient and post-classical studies in Greek language, literature, history, archaeology, philosophy, and art, from pre-Hellenic times to the present. It offers two major research libraries: the Blegen, with 84,000 volumes dedicated to the ancient Mediterranean world; and the Gennadius, with 109,000 volumes and archives devoted to post-classical Hellenic civilization and, more broadly, the Balkans and the eastern Mediterranean. The School also sponsors excavations and provides centers for advanced research in archaeological and related topics at its excavations in the Athenian Agora and Corinth, and it houses an archaeological laboratory at the main building complex in Athens. By agreement with the Greek government, the School is authorized to serve as liaison with the Greek Ministry of Culture on behalf of American students and scholars for the acquisition of permits to excavate and to study museum collections. The fellowships are open to postdoctoral scholars and professionals in relevant fields who are U.S. citizens or foreign nationals who have lived in the U.S. for the three years immediately preceding the application deadline. Applicants must have completed their professional training but do not have to hold the Ph.D. Two to four fellowships are available, for projects of five to ten months. The maximum stipend for a five-month project is $17,500; for a ten-month project, $35,000. The fellowship term must coincide with the American School's academic year, September to June. Full application information and requests for further information on the American School of Classical Studies or the Fellowship may be obtained from the address below.

International Research & Exchanges Board (IREX)

Founded in 1968, the International Research & Exchanges Board (IREX) is a U.S. nonprofit organization specializing in higher education and professional training programs between the United States and Europe, Eurasia, the Near East, and Asia. For over three decades, IREX has supported thousands of students, scholars, policymakers, business leaders, journalists, and other professionals who are leaders in their fields. The IREX mission is to foster democracy in transitioning societies through support programs in higher education, Internet development, independent media, and civil society; to strengthen and help internationalize educational, nongovernmental, and media organizations; to support the highest quality research in the social sciences and humanities; to cooperate with universities, nongovernmental organizations, foundations, governments, and corporations to advance these goals and to identify and train the next generation of leaders. IREX provides support to programs and participants through its network of representatives and offices in over 100 cities. IREX's U.S. scholar programs support advanced research and networking, foster international academic cooperation, help increase access to information, and disseminate knowledge about Europe, Eurasia, Turkey, Mongolia, and Iran to a wide network of constituents in the United States and abroad. NEH funding supports humanities scholars through IREX's core U.S. academic program, the Individual Advanced Research Opportunities (IARO) program. IARO grants support on-site research by postdoctoral scholars and holders of terminal graduate degrees for periods of four to nine months. IREX anticipates awarding approximately four NEH IARO Fellowships for the 2004-2005 academic year.

Medici Archive Project

The Medici Archive Project is a non-profit scholarly organization based in Florence, Italy. It was founded in 1993 for the purposes of creating "Documentary Sources for the Arts and Humanities in the Medici Granducal Archive: 1537-1743," a monumental database accessing the Medici Granducal Archive; channeling the unique resources of the Medici Granducal Archive into the mainstream of current scholarship through research and publication; advocating the essential importance of archival documentation for historical research; and developing new technological solutions that meet the special challenges of humanities computing. The Project offers three-year post-doctoral fellowships (15 September 2004-15 July 2007) consisting of 20 months of full-time document assessment and description for the "Documentary Sources" database in collaboration with the Project's research team onsite in the Archivio di Stato di Firenze and 10 months of independent research on a topic related to the Medici Granducal Archive, carried out in two 5-month segments in the second and third year of the fellowship period. The fellowship stipend is $30,000 per year plus a travel allowance. Full application information is available on the Project web site.

Social Science Research Council: Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies

The Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies, established in 1986 at the Freie Universität Berlin and in the United States at the Social Science Research Council, is a residential program supporting American scholars with specialized knowledge of modern and contemporary German and European affairs. The Program supports anthropologists, economists, political scientists, sociologists, and scholars in all germane humanities and cultural studies fields, including historians working on the period since the mid-19th century. Fellowships are awarded for postdoctoral research in Berlin leading to completion of a monograph. The Program offers a stimulating academic environment that integrates research opportunities with intellectual and cultural interaction. An essential part of the Program is the bi-weekly seminar, which brings together the North American fellows and leading German scholars. Fellows have access to Berlin's broader intellectual community and extensive libraries. Fellows are selected by an international, interdisciplinary advisory committee of scholars and work closely with colleagues and senior scholars at all three major Berlin universities - Freie Universität, Humboldt Universität, and Technische Universität - and many of the capital's advanced study institutions, including Max Planck Institutes, the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin, and the Wissenschaftszentrum Berlin. The program accepts applications from Ph.D.s at all levels who are citizens and permanent residents of the United States. The NEH fellowship provides a stipend of $30,000 to be used for living and research expenses during the fellows' stay in Berlin. Additional funds may be awarded for travel, as necessary. One to two fellowships are available. All fellowships begin in either October (Wintersemester) of the year of selection or the next April (Sommersemester), with exact dates following the Berlin academic calendar. Awards provide between nine and twelve months of research support at the Freie Universität Berlin.
