Dear Friends,

Through grants that enrich communities throughout the nation, the National Endowment for the Humanities supports cultural preservation projects, educational improvement, scholarly research, and public programs. By deepening our knowledge of human history, thought, and culture, the Endowment enriches our nation's cultural life.

The Endowment supports these programs with the belief that Americans know the importance of history in their lives. By visiting museums and historical organizations, by watching documentaries on public television, and by tracing their own family's history, Americans sustain our nation's heritage. NEH preserves and clarifies that heritage through programs that preserve U.S. newspapers, that catalog and edit the papers of U.S. Presidents, and that uncover knowledge once hidden in archives around the world.

NEH also shapes the future through its Schools for a New Millennium, which offer models of how teachers, principals, librarians, and communities can integrate cutting-edge technology into the classroom. The Endowment provides organizations with seed money to protect humanities facilities and programming through Challenge Grants that award funds to match those raised in the public sector. Through these and other grants, NEH recovers the past and ensures its survival, and adapts technology as a tool for defining and celebrating the humanities for future generations.

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

"Democracy demands wisdom and vision in its citizens"

— National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965 In order "to promote progress and scholarship in the humanities and the arts in the United States," Congress enacted the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965. This act established the National Endowment for the Humanities as an independent grant-making agency of the federal government to support research, education, and public programs in the humanities.

THE HUMANITIES

The act that established the National Endowment for the Humanities says, "The term 'humanities' includes, but is not limited to, the study of the following: language, both modern and classical; linguistics; literature; history; jurisprudence; philosophy; archaeology; comparative religion; ethics; the history, criticism, and theory of the arts; those aspects of social sciences which have humanistic content and employ humanistic methods; and the study and application of the humanities to the human environment with particular attention to reflecting our diverse heritage, traditions, and history and to the relevance of the humanities to the current conditions of national life."

The National Endowment for the Humanities supports exemplary work to advance and disseminate knowledge in all the disciplines of the humanities. Endowment support is intended to complement and assist private and local efforts.

In the most general terms, NEH-supported projects aid scholarship and research in the humanities, help improve humanities education, and foster in the American people a greater curiosity about and understanding of the humanities. More specific information about the types of projects supported may be found in the programs section beginning on page 6.

WHOM THE ENDOWMENT SUPPORTS

The Endowment welcomes applications from individuals and nonprofit associations, institutions, and organizations. Except where otherwise specified, individuals eligible for Endowment assistance include U.S. citizens and foreign nationals who have been legal residents in the United States for a period of at least the three years immediately preceding the submission of the application. For additional rules on eligibility, an applicant should refer to the program guidelines.

WHAT THE ENDOWMENT DOES NOT SUPPORT

The Endowment does not fund projects that

- are undertaken to satisfy requirements for degrees (with the exception of the Faculty Graduate Study Program for Historically Black Colleges and Universities);
- create music compositions, dance, art, poetry, short stories, or novels;
- are directed at persuading an audience to a particular political, philosophical, religious, or ideological point of view.

APPLYING FOR A GRANT

Applicants are encouraged to consult with NEH staff by phone or letter before submitting a formal proposal. Given enough lead time, staff will try to comment on draft proposals.

Those planning to apply for Endowment assistance should write to the appropriate Endowment division or office, briefly describing the proposed project and requesting guidelines and application forms. Guidelines and application forms are available from the program or the Public Information Office (see inside cover) or from the NEH website at http://www.neh.gov/. For the hearing impaired, the TDD number is 202/606-8282. The Public Information Office does not maintain a general mailing list. Instead, the Endowment responds to specific requests for publications by mail, phone, or e-mail.

HOW APPLICATIONS ARE EVALUATED

Each Endowment application is assessed first by knowledgeable persons outside the agency who are asked for their judgments about the quality and significance of the proposed project. In fiscal year 1998, about 650 scholars, professionals in the humanities, and other experts served on approximately 125 panels. Panelists represent a diversity of disciplinary, institutional, regional, and cultural backgrounds. In some programs the judgment of panelists is supplemented by reviews from specialists who have extensive knowledge of the specific subject or technical aspects of the application.

The advice of evaluators is assembled by the staff of the Endowment, who comment on matters of fact or on significant issues that would otherwise be missing from the review. These materials are forwarded to the National Council on the Humanities, a board of twenty-six citizens nominated by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate. The National Council meets three times a year to advise the Chairman of the Endowment. The Chairman, who is appointed for a four-year term by the President with the consent of the Senate, takes into account the advice provided and, by law, makes the final decision about funding. A final decision can normally be expected about six months after the application deadline.

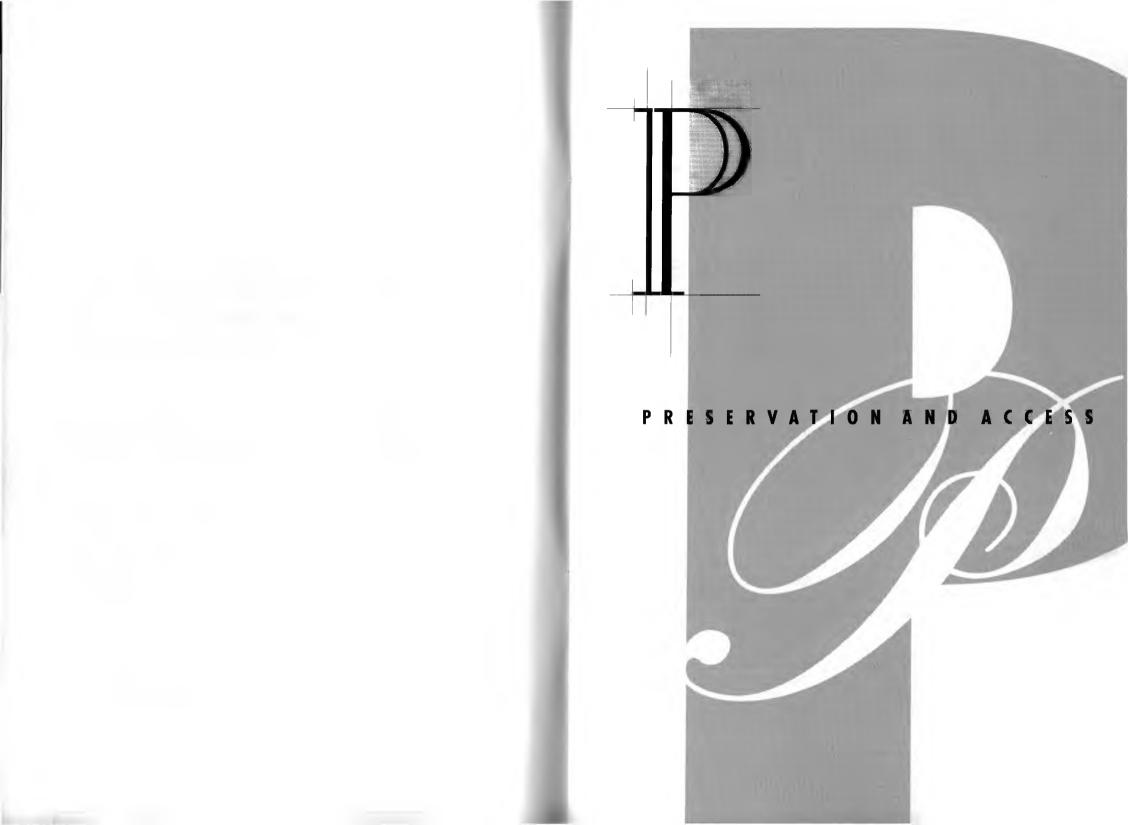

FEDERAL/STATE PARTNERSHIP

The Federal/State Partnership fosters public understanding of the humanities throughout the nation through state humanities councils in the fifty states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, and Guam.

Each state council supports activities in the humanities aimed at a broad variety of audiences by designing and conducting its own programs and awarding grants. The council establishes its own grant guidelines and sets its own application deadlines (see the addresses for the state councils on page 26). State humanities councils support many different projects in the humanities, including reading and discussion programs, lectures, conferences, seminars and institutes for teachers and school administrators, media productions and presentations, and museum and traveling exhibitions.

ENTERPRISE

The Enterprise office implements Endowment-wide special initiatives, creates partner-ships with other federal agencies and private organizations, engages in raising funds for humanities activities, and explores other leadership opportunities for the agency.

RESERVATION

PRESERVATION AND ACCESS

Grants are made for projects that will create, preserve, and increase the availability of resources important for research, education, and public programming in the humanities.

PRESERVATION AND ACCESS PROJECTS

Support may be sought to preserve and provide intellectual access to collections significant to the humanities; to create dictionaries, encyclopedias, textbases, bibliographies, and other types of research tools and reference works; and to stabilize material culture collections through the appropriate housing and storing of objects, improved environmental control, and the installation of security, lighting, and fire-prevention systems. Applications may also be submitted for national and regional education and training projects, regional preservation field service programs, and research and demonstration projects that are intended to enhance institutional practice and the use of technology for preservation and access.

Collections that are the focus of preservation and access projects may encompass books, journals, newspapers, manuscript and archival materials, maps, still and moving images, sound recordings, and objects of material culture held by libraries, archives, museums, historical organizations, and other repositories. Proposals may combine preservation and access activities within a single project. Historically black colleges and universities with significant institutional collections of primary materials are encouraged to apply.

Eligible applicants: Individuals, nonprofit institutions and cultural organizations, state agencies, and institutional consortia.

Application deadline: July 1, 1999

PUBLIC PROGRAMS

This division fosters public understanding and appreciation of the humanities by supporting projects that engage public audiences in themes, topics, and insights of the humanities through, for example, interpretive exhibitions, radio and television programs, lectures, symposia, multimedia projects, printed materials, and reading and discussion groups.

PUBLIC PROGRAMS

Grants support the planning, scripting, and producing of television and radio programs in the humanities intended for general audiences; the planning and implementation of exhibitions, the interpretation of historic sites, and the production of related publications, multimedia components, and educational programs; the planning and implementation of projects through the use of books, new technologies, and other resources in the collections of libraries and archives in formats such as reading and discussion programs, lectures, symposia, and interpretive exhibitions; and the planning and implementation of other regional and national programs, including digital projects, that offer lifelong learning opportunities for the American public.

Eligible applicants: Nonprofit institutions and organizations including public television and radio stations, libraries, museums, historic sites, and state humanities councils.

Application deadlines: February 1, 1999; November 2, 1999 (planning only);

e-mail: publicpgms@neh.gov

RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

Through grants to educational institutions, fellowships to scholars and teachers, and through the support of significant research this division is designed to strengthen sustained, thoughtful study of the humanities at all levels of education and promote original research in the humanities.

FELLOWSHIPS AND STIPENDS

Grants provide support for scholars to undertake full-time independent research and writing in the humanities. Grants are available for a maximum of one year and a minimum of eight weeks of summer study.

Eligible applicants: Individuals.

Application deadlines: Fellowships—May 1, 1999

EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT AND DEMONSTRATION

Grants, including "next semester" Humanities Focus Grants, support curriculum and materials development efforts; faculty study programs within and among educational institutions; and dissemination of significant developments in humanities education. Schools for a New Millennium Grants enable whole schools, in partner-ship with colleges and communities, to design professional development activities integrating digital technology into the humanities classroom.

Eligible applicants: Public and private elementary and secondary schools, school systems, colleges and universities, nonprofit academic associations, and cultural institutions, such as libraries and museums.

RESEARCH

Grants provide up to three years of support for collaborative research projects in the preparation of editions, translations, and other important works in the humanities, and in the conduct of large or complex interpretive studies including archaeology projects and the humanities studies of science and technology.

Grants also support fellowships offered through independent research institutions. A list of the programs is available from the division or the NEH website.

Eligible applicants: Individuals, institutions of higher education, nonprofit professional associations, scholarly societies, and other nonprofit organizations.

SEMINARS AND INSTITUTES

Grants support national summer seminars and institutes in the humanities for college and school teachers. These faculty development activities are conducted at colleges and universities across the country. Those wishing to participate in seminars should submit their seminar applications to the seminar director. Lists of upcoming seminars and institutes are available from the program or the NEH website.

Eligible applicants: Individuals and institutions of higher learning.

Application deadlines: Participants—March 1, 1999, for summer 1999

Directors—March 1, 1999, for summer 2000

DIRECTED TEAM STUDY IN THE HUMANITIES

Through an award to the Council for Basic Education, support is available to teams of four teachers in elementary and secondary schools to explore humanities topics with a scholar, and to develop new curricula based on their learning. Information about this program may be obtained by calling 202/347-4171, writing the Council for Basic Education, 1319 F Street, Suite 900, N.W., Washington, D.C., 20004, or visiting the website www.c-b-e.org.

CHALLENGE GRANTS

Nonprofit institutions interested in developing new sources of long-term support for educational, scholarly, preservation, and public programs in the humanities may be assisted in these efforts by an NEH Challenge Grant. Grantees are required to raise three or four dollars in nonfederal donations for every federal dollar offered. Both federal and nonfederal funds may be used to establish or increase institutional endowments and thus guarantee long-term support for a variety of humanities needs. Funds may also be used for limited direct capital expenditures, where such needs are compelling and clearly related to long-term improvements in the humanities.

Eligible applicants:

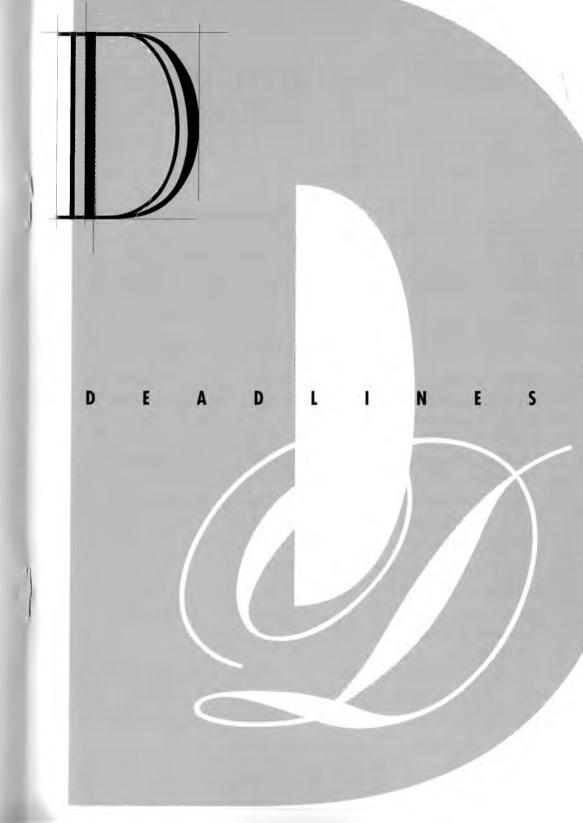

Nonprofit postsecondary, educational, research, and cultural institutions and organizations working within the humanities.

Application deadline: May 1, 1999

THE JEFFERSON LECTURE

The Jefferson Lecture in the Humanities, established by the Endowment in 1972, is the highest honor the federal government bestows for distinguished intellectual achievement in the humanities. The lecture, traditionally delivered each spring, provides the opportunity for an outstanding thinker to present in a public forum matters of broad concern in the humanities. The lecturer is chosen each year by the National Council on the Humanities.

The twenty-seventh Annual Jefferson Lecturer was Bernard Bailyn. Former lecturers were Lionel Trilling, Erik Erikson, Robert Penn Warren, Paul Freund, John Hope Franklin, Saul Bellow, C. Vann Woodward, Edward Shils, Barbara Tuchman, Gerald Holton, Emily Townsend Vermeule, Jaroslav Pelikan, Sidney Hook, Cleanth Brooks, Leszek Kolakowski, Forrest McDonald, Robert Nisbet, Walker Percy, Bernard Lewis, Gertrude Himmelfarb, Bernard Knox, Robert Conquest, Gwendolyn Brooks, Vincent Scully, Toni Morrison, and Stephen Toulmin.

THE NATIONAL HUMANITIES MEDAL

The National Humanities Medal honors individuals who have stimulated and expanded public understanding of the humanities. The 1998 honorees were Stephen Ambrose, E. L. Doctorow, Diana L. Eck, Nancye Brown Gaj, Henry Louis Gates, Jr., Vartan Gregorian, Ramón Eduardo Ruiz, Arthur Schelsinger, Jr., and Garry Wills.
